This Trio Made Borderland Route Travelable Even In Muddy Times

That the Borderland Route from Los Angeles, San Diego, through the Imperial valley to Yuma and thence to Phoenix, Tucson and El Paso, is travelable every day in the year was the statement made to a representative of The Republican last evening by Harry Locke, Field Engineer of the Arizona Good Roads Association.

Locke arrived yesterday afternoon with A. T. Kenyon of the Kenyon Tire Supply company of this city in a little Martin-Palmer roadster, having been on the road from Los Angeles for nine days, during which time they encountered heavy storms and the result of floods in the rivers, creeks and washes, but on every day various distances were negotiated in the homeward journey. Kenyon is to be state agent for the Martin-Palmer car.

On the Gila River at this point impassable for a car on its own power as the water in the lowlands for a distance of two miles was above the running boards.

After being towed by a mule team for this short stretch to high ground the party found hard lava mounds in perfect condition and excellent time was made for the next few miles. Another storm during the forenoon made racing torrents of dry washes and necessitated a night on the desert beside a big bonfire and no real discomforts. In the morning the temporary creeks were dry out had washed steep places on their banks which made traveling very slow. So Castle Dome mine was an appreciated haven for accommodations the following night.

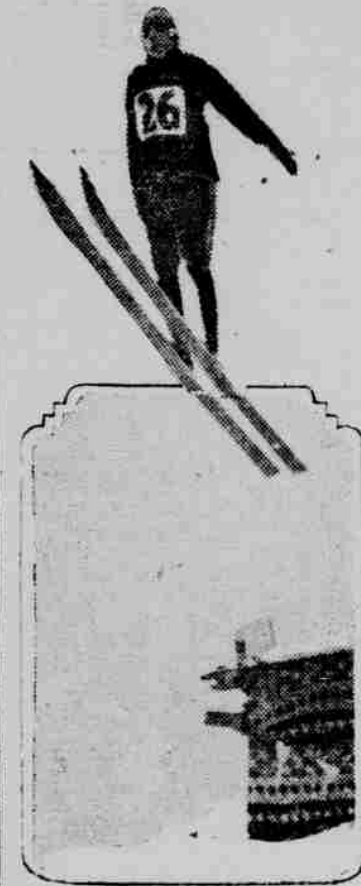

Taking an early start for the rocky defile through the Dome mountains, being unable to cross the Gila which they reported in its greatest flood since 1881.

From Agua Caliente to Phoenix no serious difficulties were encountered with the exception of brushing short stretches through the lowlands and the detour which is now necessary to cross the Agua Fria at Colwater. Yesterday is the first day that automobiles have been able to make a crossing at this point and they have done so by going to the old tinckey ford about two miles below the main road.

Unquestionably the conditions encountered by Locke and Kenyon on this trip are the most severe that have ever been known between Phoenix and Yuma and the fact that they were able to bring a small powered car through at this time is the best evidence that the Borderland route is absolutely

FINANCES AND MARKETS

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH] NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The outstanding feature of a dull and irregular stock market was its extremely professional character. That fact, continued operations on the bear side, judging from the quiet but persistent pressure on leading issues the greater part of the session. Steel, which led yesterday's rise, kept well above the new minimum, most of the selling concentrating on Reading and Canadian Pacific. Trading showed some heaviness in the London market, where international issues, with few exceptions, tended to a lower level. Petroleum shares increased recent gains on reports of another advance in crude product. Fertilizer issues also recorded substantial advances. Sugar stocks declined precipitately in the middle of the session. Closing prices in many instances were under yesterday's. Bonds were irregular. Total sales represented a net value of $1,962,000. United States 2 1/2 and 4s gained on actual transactions.

THREE SUITS ARE DECIDED

But Litigation Goes on Forever—Judge Sawtelle Affirmed in One and Reversed in Two Decisions by Appellate Court

News was received here yesterday of three decisions in Arizona cases, by the ninth circuit court of appeals at San Francisco—two of the decisions reversing Judge Sawtelle of the Arizona federal court, and one of them affirming him. The cases are these:

Farmers and Merchants bank, in its application for lien against these assets of the Arizona Mutual Savings and Loan Association, left as surplus after the lien of the stockholders—an appeal against Judge Sawtelle's decision reversing Judge Sloan, his predecessor, and his order throwing the bank's application out of court. In this case, it was not learned whether the appellate court had affirmed the decision, or had upheld the order.

A copy of the decision will be received here today.

The second case was that of the suit by the Smith-Booth-Usher company to recover the purchase price of machinery sold to the Detroit Copper company, the decision of Judge Sawtelle in favor of the defendant being reversed, on appeal by Attorney William M. Seabury.

The third case was a rather involved one, regarding the application by the Arizona Copper company, defendant in a damage suit by Silvas, a minor, to compel plaintiff to put up security for the costs of the suit. Judge Sawtelle held that the security must be put up. On appeal, Attorney Wm. M. Seabury for the plaintiff, urged that being a minor, it was not necessary for the guardian of Silvas to put up security, and this position was upheld by the appellate court.

As a phase of the most oddly mingled case of the Arizona Mutual Savings and Loan association and Arizona Trust company suits, the first decision brings up the highly ramified litigation in such a way as to demand another resume of the entire proceedings. It is noted here, however, that the affirmation of the Sawtelle order or decree—whichever it is—does not halt the litigation, for there yet remains the Seabury application for the mandamus to compel Judge Sawtelle to reinstate and recognize the Sloan decree.

Originally, the Arizona Trust company was organized by the officers of the Savings and Loan association, to take over the assets of that company, which was become insolvent. Stockholders in the Savings and Loan company were to be given stock in the Trust company in exchange for their old holdings. The transfer of the assets was made in consideration of $150,000 worth of Trust company stock, placed in the treasury of the loan association, and when part of the old stockholders asked for Trust company stock, they were given some of that very stock which had been used as the purchase price of their own assets.

Because the superior court of the county failed—as the dissatisfied association stockholders maintained—to prevent the officers from keeping the books as they saw fit, in spite of a temporary injunction, Mr. Seabury acting for some who had refused the transfer and for some who rescinded their orders of transfer on proof of misrepresentation, took the case into the federal court. He represented Charles Clark, a resident of California, and incidentally named all others similarly situated in his complaint, so that any benefits he might have secured for his clients would accrue to these others. After much litigation, the case came into the hands of Judge Sloan, then sitting as federal judge in Arizona. Sloan's decision gave to the stockholders who had refused to transfer the first lien on the assets.

EVANS SCHOOL WON IN NINTH

Garrison Finish Cleans Up for Southsiders—Mathers Too Much for Coyotes, Who Still Lack Their Batting Eyes

BY THE CUB

It was a good game even if the Coyotes did lose. Yep! The boys from the Evans school managed to break the lead of the Coyotes in the ninth and win the game yesterday at a score of six to five. It was a clean game and both teams showed speed, especially the Coyotes, who were playing their first game this season. The Coyotes are showing fine form and from appearances will bid fair for the high school championship this coming season.

The Evans boys came over with about ten or fifteen rooters who made things lively with their yells. The southsiders were in midseason form, having played three games previous to the one yesterday. Moody, Cobb, Lowrey and Mathers starred for the Evans team. Both Cobb and Mathers hit hard and between the two—Mathers in the box and Cobb behind the plate—the Coyotes were kept guessing. Bill Swift, of tennis fame, played a good clean game, living up to his name.

And the Coyotes sure did show class. They have improved wonderfully under the coaching of Herb Hill. The boys from Mesa certainly had to jump to win that game. Little Loyal, Walters, Ellis, Comstock and Brown all played fine ball. The whole team showed speed and the way Brown and Westfall were pitching it looked as if the Coyotes were coming out with the big end of the score. Walters' home run in the fourth was the feature of the game.

The boys from Phoenix High are determined to beat the Evans school team yet, so they have arranged for a return game to be played at the Evans school just outside of Mesa on Washington's birthday at three o'clock. The Evans boys are anxious to meet the Phoenix team as they are to meet Evans, and it promises to be a good game. The Evans team meets Tempe High at Tempe on next Saturday afternoon.

Score—R H E
Coyotes..... 5 19 2
Evans..... 6 21 2
Batteries—Brown, Westfall and Ladd; Mathers and Cobb.

FEDERAL GAME LAW IS NOW BEING ENFORCED

Warden Willard Informs Inquirers That the First Person Caught Shooting Ducks Will Furnish a Perfectly Good Test Case

"Hello, is this the office of the game warden?"
"Yes."
"Well, or when do we have to stop shooting ducks?"
"Tossy ran the first few bars of at least a dozen conversations over the wire to Warden Willard's office at the state house yesterday and in each instance the inquirer was informed that he had had to stop slaughtering the toothsome waterfowl three days ago.

In other words, although the revised statutes of the state of Arizona say nothing about it, duck hunting after February 1 is prohibited by the federal law, and that law is going to be enforced more rigidly than a European war censorship.

Just who will be the first to fall into the hands of the United States marshal for violating the statute, and thus furnish a perfectly good opportunity to test the constitutionality of the federal game law, is a question that is not worrying Warden Willard one bit. His but left the way open for the trust company to get the surplus. That came the Farmers and Merchants bank, which had become insolvent, seeking to recover $18,500 worth of securities, contracted for stock with the Trust company. Paul R. Ingles represented the bank, and his suit was to get part of the surplus assets remaining to the trust company, after the liens for the loan association's stock holders had been satisfied. Judge Sawtelle, on the ground that in asking for a redistribution of the assets, Seabury's clients had not gained what they sought from Judge Sloan, when the latter granted first liens, reversed the decree of his predecessor, although there is a federal statute against tampering with a federal court decree after the term in which it is rendered has passed.

The loan association and trust company litigation was further complicated by the intervention of some of the stockholders who had transferred their stock, and some who had transferred and then rescinded. These parties were represented by Attorneys Benton Dick, Oscar Richey, Joe and Robert Morrison. George Stoneman represented the receiver, Sims Ely, who had superseded George D. Christy, after the accession of Judge Sawtelle.

The most important suit now remaining in this case is that of the original stockholders to compel Judge Sawtelle to recognize the Sloan decree, and a decision is expected from San Francisco at any time.
